Mateo is a Software Engineer and has more than nine (+9) years of professional experience. Currently, he works at EPAM as a Lead Software Engineer. In this position he is currently coding; it means he is a hands-on manager who does both functions, developing and leading people. Mateo is now working on two different projects. One for an initiative of creating Micro Frontends architecture using Module Federation with webpack and Angular. And the other is for an enhancements team for Kantar Client, dedicated to adding new features in several UI applications; some of them coded in angularJS and some others in Angular. Mateo described himself as a flexible, charismatic, energetic and open person to work with. The candidate is looking forward to being part of Passport because 1) he would like to develop not just for different clients' projects, but for the company's products and services. 2) When he read the Job Description, he liked the tech stack that Passport is using and will love to develop in those. Furthermore, he is eager to be part of the Fintech sector and understand more about what Passport is currently building 3) Mateo is looking forward to having stability, security and growth inside a company.
